LSE visits Galatasaray University

The London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) is the world’s leading dedicated social science institution and enjoys a global reputation for academic excellence. LSE offers over 140 taught graduate (Master) programmes and many opportunities for research study (PhD programmes) in more than 30 departments and institutes. As a ‘laboratory of the social sciences’, the School’s academic profile spans a wide range of disciplines, from accounting, economics, law and management to anthropology, development, gender studies and urbanisation.

Each year LSE welcomes approximately 80 Turkish students and has agreements with the Jean Monnet scholarship scheme. For further information on the application process, please refer to the Jean Monnet website. This is part of the £14 million (approximately €17.5million) of financial aid LSE makes available to its students each year.

James Brown, Student Recruitment Officer at LSE will be visiting Galatasaray University at 4.00pm on Tuesday 21 October in room Erdoğan Teziç to conduct an information session about studying at LSE. This session will provide an opportunity for you to learn more about the School and to ask any questions you might have.

For further details about LSE email stu.rec@lse.ac.uk or visit the Turkey country page.
